The show, which sees truckers attempt to drive trucks across a remote ice-road in northern Canada, saw profits at £25m last year, up from £8m in 2010. Jon Snow, director of Discovery Science, said: "The combination of the Ice Road Truckers' authenticity and storytelling, coupled with the show's superb distribution in the UK – 24.9 million viewers for the first season's finale – means that Ice Road Truckers has proven to be a huge boost for Discovery. "The programme was already generating record viewing figures in the UK and Europe, but the Olympics and royal wedding made the ice truck the number-one ice hit for us last summer. "And even more importantly, these first-year results demonstrate the confidence the channel has in the show, and that it provides a significant lift for Discovery as a whole." The show, which was produced for more than a year before airing, has won several awards, including the Gold Crown at the Royal Television Society's TV Festival and the Best Entertainment Show prize at the Canada International Children's Festival. The show is now in its second series, with a third series in development. "We're so proud to be part of the worlds most f678ea9f9e
